City & county receive update on baseball, conservation

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The Yolo County Board of Supervisors came to West Sacramento last Wednesday for a joint meeting with the West Sacramento City Council. The two bodies joined to listen to reports on several items, including:

■ An update on the Yolo County Habitat Conservation Plan, which aims to come up with a "one-stop" plan for environmental mitigation measures needed for development. The plan has stalled, reported Asst. County Counsel Steve Basha, partly because West Sacramento planner Terry Roberts – who had been spearheading the complicated deal – has left for other employment.

"This entire matter involves many different issues," reported Basha, "including agricultural pressures, legal issues, development goals, neighbors' liability and different levels of government. Not everyone can get what they want without impacting on another interest."

"I can almost guarantee that it will not (receive approval) from all these interests."

West Sacramento Mayor Christopher Cabaldon noted that the Habitat Conservation Plan "has been a foundation of this city for a long time," saying "we've assumed the Habitat Conservation Plan into our fee structure."

"At some point, we've got to come to a determination about what we can achieve in a reasonable amount of time," Cabaldon said.

■ City redevelopment director Val Toppenberg reported on the progress of the Triple-A stadium effort, which has drawn support from Yolo County, the City of West Sacramento and the County of Sacramento in the form of a "joint powers authority" to set up financing mechanisms.

"Last December, we really thought all the effort we'd made to date was all for naught, until January, when the Joint Powers Authority came forward."

Pending a decision by Yolo County Judge Timothy Fall – expected at any moment – a lawsuit blocking the stadium's construction may be rejected. If so, construction bonds for the will be sold, Toppenberg reported.

"Those bonds are scheduled to be sold on the 30th of this month, depending on the latest effort of (the legal challengers) 'Friends of Sacramento,' " said Toppenberg. A hearing was held on the issue in Fall's courtroom on Friday.

■ The supervisors and council were filled in on plans for the Riverbank Music Festival and the "River Otter Amphibious Race," both scheduled for Sept. 25.

There will be no "Port Festival" this year, but the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce is helping to put together the blues festival at a location on the city's waterfront near the Money Store building.

The amphibious race will take place the same day, sponsored by the chambers of commerce on both sides of the river, and will entail four miles of racing "kinetic sculptures" on the river and over land, mud and sand.

"It is a four mile race that starts in Old Sacramento and goes north to Discovery Park, enters the water, goes down the river, and lands at West Sacramento's Broderick Boat Ramp, where it travels on streets to the Money Store building," reported Rusty Hammer, C.E.O. and president of the Sacramento Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce.

Entries are expected to be imaginative, he added. The race is modeled after a similar one in the Arcata/Ferndale area. The event will be chaired by businessman Charles Soderquist.

ABOUT TOWN:

Marge Beach and her family

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

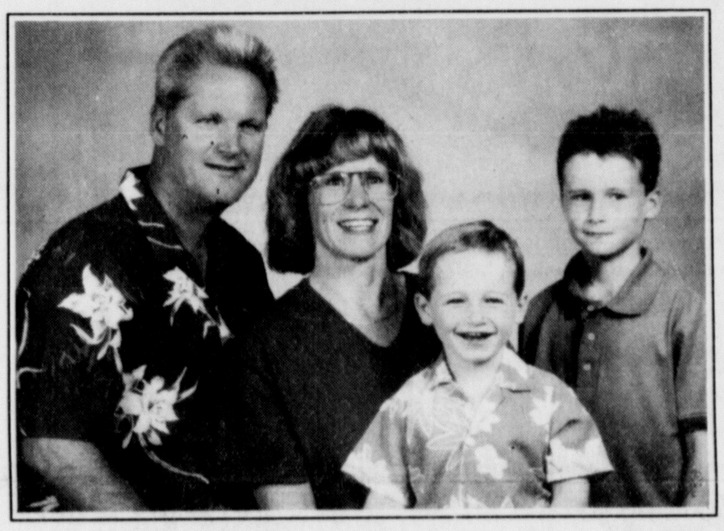
Marjorie Beach was raised in Oakland, California, where both of her parents were physicians.

"My father was a urologist and my mother was an anesthesiologist," said Marjorie. "In the case of my mother, she was quite a pioneer, because there were very few women working in that field of medicine back then. She really was a remarkable woman, and she spent the last year and a half of her life as a medical missionary in Honduras."

Marjorie was the youngest of five children and she attended Lutheran parochial schools until her sophomore year in high school.

"After high school I went to the University of California, Berkeley and majored in history," said Marjorie, "but when I graduated, I really wasn't sure what I wanted to do with the rest of my life. When my mother suggested that I consider becoming a pastor, I didn't even know such a career was possible for a woman. I had grown up a Lutheran and always enjoyed the time I spent at church, so I decided to enroll at Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminary, which was part of a large interfaith consortium. I soon met a number of other women who wanted to be in the clergy, too, and it wasn't long before it made all the sense in the world to become a pastor. It was a calling that offered me many of the things I like most in life: time to study and reflect, an opportunity to teach and preach, time spent interacting with people, and also some time spent alone. It quickly became obvious to me that being a pastor would be terribly interesting work."



THE BEACH and LAPUTZ FAMILY: Zack, Marjorie, Joshua and David

In 1979, Marjorie became the pastor of West Sacramento's Community Lutheran Church and she has loved the 20 years she has spent in that position.

"When I was young," said Marjorie, "I had the same pastor for 35 years, and I think there is a lot to be said for continuity. The little boys and girls I baptized a couple of decades ago are now going off to college, getting married, and starting their own lives, and that is very rewarding to me."

When asked to talk a bit about Community Lutheran Church and what influence her 20 years of being its pastor has had on it, Marjorie said, "Community Lutheran has been in West Sacramento for 43 years, and as people have come and gone, I think it's fair to say we have remained a church that emphasizes grace and inclusion, and that we are a church which has its own vibrant expression of faith. We very much believe in the power of the cross and that the deepest power comes from the deepest suffering. We always try to lift each other up, and we try not to divide. The world is full of different expressions of faith and I believe that all religious beings are connected. Over the years, I have also become concerned that the mother image, which was so important to major world religions thousands of years ago, has been pushed aside, and I do my best to speak of the creative source as the heavenly parent. It's all part of the inclusive language we try to bring to our worship services."

Helena Helmold, the executive director of the East Yolo Information Center and a longtime member of Community Lutheran said, "Pastor Marge is absolutely fantastic at what she does and we're extremely lucky to have her in West Sacramento. She is a very understanding and caring person and what I especially like about her is that she is always learning and growing. She's had a wonderful education and training, and she also has that rare ability to explain the Bible in modern day language. I just love her."

Joanna Miranda, who has been Marjorie's administrative assistant at Community Lutheran for more than a decade said, "Not only is Pastor Marge very easy to work with, but she is also probably the most loving person I have ever known. She really enjoys her work and it shows. She is very enthusiastic about her beliefs and she has the courage of her convictions. She is also very family orientated and her day off from work is always devoted totally to her husband and sons. She really is a special person."

Marjorie married Zack Laputz in 1982 and they have two sons, David and Joshua, both of whom attend Southport Elementary School.

"I make a special effort to devote as much time to my family as I do to my pastoral duties," said Marjorie, "and we particularly enjoy going on long bike rides together. Zack and I get on our row-bike, the kids get on their mountain bikes, and we pedal all over the place. It's great fun and a good way to spend quality family time together."

When Marjorie isn't biking, she also enjoys traveling, spending time at the ocean, playing the piano and guitar, jogging, and reading. "Having grown up in a big city, I've really come to enjoy the friendly, small town atmosphere of West Sacramento," said Marjorie. "You can truly get to know people individually here."

Marjorie would also like to encourage anyone looking for a friendly, progressive, and loving place to worship to consider Community Lutheran Church, which is located at 920 Drever Street.

Anyone interested in learning more about the church and its many activities can do so by calling 371-8804. Vacation Bible School runs from July 19-23 this year and the church's annual Flea Market will be held on August 7 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.. Sunday worship services are at 10 a.m.

Southport housing development kicks off

A 380-acre residential development in Southport broke ground last Wednesday in a ceremony attended by developers and local officials.

"Bridgeway Island," formerly known as the "Gainsborough" project, is slated to hold 1,800 new single family homes from 1,400 to 2,500 square feet. Builders will include JTS Communities, Kaufman and Broad, Richmond American Homes, Forecast Homes and Christopherson Homes.

The development is located in the city's southern half, west of Jefferson Blvd., north of Marshall Rd., and east of the deep water shipping channel. It is located south of the Southport Industrial Park.

Vibrant colors

From Betty Sokolich

There is a warm glow of color in the 18 paintings by Sacramento artist Sylvia Jorjorian that are now hanging in the Turner Library through July.

The deep blues and variety of greens found in nature are contrasted with brilliant cerise and bright sunlight yellow. The colors and forms dance across the canvas in a rhythmical pattern. For instance, "New Horizons" suggests leaves being blown wildly around as the new season moves from autumn into winter.

Convenience market robbed at gunpoint

The Quick Stop Market at 1648 West Capitol Ave. was robbed early Monday morning, according to police records.

A gunman entered the store about 2:15 a.m. and selected several items for purchase, placing a burrito in the store's microwave, then approached the clerk and displayed a revolver. Demanding money, the suspect received money from the cash register and safe, then demanded the store's security video tape.

He left the store with the items.

The suspect is described as a black male with a dark complexion, in his mid-20s, about 5' 7" with a medium build and a short "Afro"-style haircut, clean-shaven, and was wearing a gray sweatshirt and jeans.

The police department can be reached at 372-2461 if you have information on the crime.

West Sac girl can help you say 'Happy Birthday'

A West Sacramento girl is one of 12 young artists nationwide whose original birthday card design has been chosen by Hallmark to be sold nationwide.

Chelsie Cisneros, 10, was one of only a dozen winners selected from a pool of more than 70,000 Hallmark contest entries, the company reports. Contestants ranged from five to 14 years of age. Chelsie was a winner in the category for 10 and 11-year olds.

"I walked into my mother's room and she yelled 'We won,' " Chelsie said. "Before that, my mom had kept saying, "I know you're going to win.' I guess it was instinct."

Winners were chosen on the basis of ingenuity, creativity, use of color, use of space, strong focal point, originality, reproduction quality and overall creative quality.

Her card design will sell for 99 cents, beginning in July, at Hallmark outlets in stationery stores, supermarkets and other locations. The design is a colorful illustration of a teddy bear soaring amidst colorful balloons.

CHELSIE CISNEROS

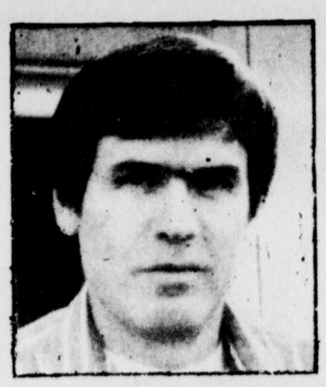
Chelsie and her family received a couple of all-expenses paid trips as her prize. First, they were taken to the Kansas City, Missouri, home of Hallmark Cards from June 11-13. While there, she was scheduled to receive a framed copy of her card, a tour of the company, and a reception at "Kaleidoscope," Hallmark's division designed to provide children with art experiences.

In August, the family will be taken to Easton, Pennsylvania, to visit the Binney & Smith company, makers of Crayola products. They will be invited to have fun at The Crayola Factory.

Chelsie, a Holy Cross School student, is the daughter of Max and Janielle Cisneros.

It may be time to get the kids to do the yardwork

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

It seems like every time I open up a newspaper lately, something really interesting jumps out at me. For instance, I was thumbing through last Thursday's Sacramento Bee and suddenly I spotted an article by a Scripps Howard News Service writer named Lindsay Wise which was entitled "Men Prefer Yardwork to Sex, Survey says."

The article began, "Who could have imagined that men might prefer yardwork over sex? But according to a recent study, given free time 'for fun and enjoyment', 52 percent of male 'home enthusiasts' prefer working in the yard, gardening and landscaping to having sex (47 percent)."

As I read on, I discovered that "Many Americans prefer to spend their leisure time being constructive around the home. As the economy soars, these 'home enthusiasts' are devoting huge chunks of free time and large sums of money to gardening, building, remodeling, decorating and crafts. They are spending more than just maintenance time on their homes because it relaxes them and gives them a productive way of expressing themselves."

The article concluded "Among both men and women, gardening was named as a favorite pastime by 45 percent of both men and women, while among both sexes combined, only 40 percent preferred sex for "fun and enjoyment."

"Why do you have that goofy expression on you face?" suddenly asked my wife, who was seated next to me on our couch reading another section of the newspaper.

"What expression?"

"You look confused."

"Well, maybe I am."

"Why?"

"It's just something I read, that's all."

"What did you read?"

"It wouldn't interest you?"

"Try me."

"Okay, there's this article in today's paper than says most men prefer yardwork over having sex."

"Really?"

"Can you believe that? And it also says that 40 percent of women prefer working in the garden to having sex."

"Wow. That's interesting. Did it say what percent of women prefer shopping for clothes to having sex?"

"No."

"Did it say anything about women being more interested in going out to dinner than having sex?"

"No."

"Did it say we would rather go dancing than have sex?"

"No."

"The movies?"

"No!"

"How about ice skating, plays, concerts, going to the beach...."

"Hey," I interrupted, "what are you saying here? It sounds like you think most women would rather do just about anything than have sex."

"All I'm saying, is that if 40 percent of women would rather sweat like a pig in the garden than have sex, men are really going to be surprised if they ever do a study about shopping, dancing, and going out to dinner."

"You hate gardening, don't you?"

"Yes, but I must admit that I'm very fond of shopping, dancing, going to plays, concerts, taking long walks on a beach....hey, where are you going?"

"This conversation is going nowhere," I said as I got up from the couch and went in search of my car keys. "I'm going to take a little drive and do something constructive."

"And what might that be?"

"I'm going to go check out which of our neighbors have the best kept yards."

Sacramento sewage detour through West Sac will be topic of local July 12 public hearing

The Sacramento Regional County Sanitation District (SRCSD) will hold a workshop on Monday, July 12 to give West Sacramento residents information on a routing study underway for the district's planned "Lower Northwest Interceptor." The meeting will be held at 6 p.m. in the West Sacramento City Council Chambers.

Additional public workshops will be held in Sacramento. One will take place on July 7 at 7 p.m. at the Executive Airport conference room, 6151 Freeport Blvd.; the other will be held at 7 p.m. on July 13 at the Ethel MacLeod Hart Senior Center, 915 27th St.

The "Lower Northwest Interceptor is envisioned to carry wastewater from the Natomas Pump Station in Natomas to the Sacramento Regional Wastewater Treatment Plant in Elk Grove. The district calls it "a critical link in the District's interceptor expansion program and will serve to accommodate growth occurring in the north Natomas area of the City of Sacramento and northern areas of Sacramento County."

The district is studying three alternatives. Its master-planned alternative calls for the interceptor to travel through a City of Sacramento corridor, and two other possibilities may involve its traveling through and serving West Sacramento.

Meanwhile, West Sacramento is considering either contracting with the SRCSD for its future sewage treatment needs, or building a new local sewage plant for these long-term purposes.

For information on the SRCSD's "Lower Northwest Interceptor" plans, call Patti Gillman, (916) 736-6900.

Civic honor in peril

Pride is at stake.

West Sacramento is scheduled to host part of the "Sacramento Kinetic Art Challenge" – a race for person-powered contraptions which will race across pavement, sand, mud and water – on September 25. Unless drastic measures are taken, someone from some other city is bound to win.

The race is modeled after a similar competition in the Arcata/Ferndale area, and the amphibious vehicles built for the race are expected to be whimsical and artistic. They also have to be mobile and practical, in order to finish well in the four-mile competition which begins in Old Sacramento and ends near the Money Store building.

West Sacramento can and should produce some fine entries. The city is filled with businesses with the know-how to build things that work.

This newspaper challenges the community to see what it can produce. The city is depending on you. Keep us posted with your construction progress.

With just a little luck, the anti-stadium lawsuit filed by Sacramento attorney John Latini will be effectively put out of its misery this week. The lawsuit, filed by largely unknown people who are allegedly concerned that West Sacramento did not file proper environmental review procedures when it approved a local Triple-A baseball stadium this year, deserves such a death.

Only the least cynical among us truly believe that the lawsuit is what it purports to be. Most of the facts point to something more odious: the lawsuit is likely the effort of someone on the other side of the river who would like the West Sacramento stadium deal to die so that his own baseball dreams will have a chance to succeed.

Mr. Latini, in his zeal to conceal his clients' identities, has found himself trapped in a legal technicality of his own creation. Judge Timothy Fall was not convinced that the people Latini represented during the city's public hearings on the stadium project are the same ones he now represents in the lawsuit – since he declined to name them in the lawsuit. Thus, it is not clear that the people who filed suit against the city to block the stadium had argued their issues to the city government when they had their chance. For this reason, Judge Fall initially dismissed the lawsuit.

At a hearing Friday, Latini tried (again) to amend his lawsuit to correct this deficiency. If he fails, enough of his lawsuit's power will dissipate that, even if Latini files an appeal, baseball organizers will be able to go ahead and begin selling the bonds that will build the ballpark.

Often, technicalities get in the way of the legal system. The one Mr. Latini faces, however, could mean a delicious kind of justice. Let us hope.

Gratitude and advice from one of RCHS's top graduates

(Editor's note: following are the graduation ceremony comments from Aaron Potnick, co-salutatorian for River City High School's graduating class this year. Next week, the News-Ledger will bring you the graduating remarks of class valedictorian Sultan Yusufzai.)

By Aaron Potnick
Class of 1999 Salutatorian
River City High School

Good evening family and friends of the graduating class of 1999. Tonight we celebrate our right of passage into the real world. It's time for us to take the reins of our future and shape our world they way we want it to be. Although to many of us, it may seem like it's time to leave everything from high school in the past, it would be a tragedy to forget all those people who helped us reach this crucial intersection of our lives.

First and foremost, I'd like to thank my family for supporting me throughout my life and always making sure they were there for me whenever I needed them. Without them, I wouldn't be up here speaking today. I'd especially like to thank my dad, my mom, my stepmom, my stepdad, and my grandparents for making me proud to be me.

Secondly, I'd like to thank my friends for making my time in high school a fun one. I'd like to thank my friend Scott Hampton for always making me believe in myself and showing me a good time. I'm proud to call you my friend.

Paul Fisher, Phoungeun Souvannaphoungeun, and Sanjeev Ujagur, I just wanted to let you all know that I enjoyed the grades competition between us and that I'll never forget you guys.

Next, I'd like to thank my teachers for always pushing me that extra bit and for also making me believe in my academic abilities. Mr. Engoron, thank you for teaching me discipline. Mrs. Green, thank you for teaching me how to write. Mrs. Larson, thank you for pushing me harder than I've ever been pushed before. You really taught me a great deal about myself and about my will. Coach West, thank you for being the coolest teacher I ever had. Thank you for helping me enjoy math and realizing that math is definitely my future.

Last, but not least, I'd like to thank everyone on the tennis team for three of the greatest years of my life. I must say, three undefeated championships is nothing to sneeze at, and although we never won sections, we still did a darn good job! I want to thank Phoungeun again for making us one of the best boys doubles teams to come out of River City and for winning a Boys Doubles League Championship. I'd also like to thank Khonesavanh Lattasima for the Mixed Doubles League Championship we won together. Most of all, I'd like to thank my coach, Dave Brooks, for all the time and effort he has put into the team and me. Without him, I would never have found my love for tennis and I would never have been able to boast about my athletic accomplishments, especially considering all I did was keep score when I played JV baseball, and in all honesty, being scorekeeper for the JV baseball team wasn't one of the highlights of my high school career.

Now, I'd just like to pass on some advice to some people. To all the underclassmen, make sure you realize that the world doesn't revolve around high school. There are much greater things to focus your time and energy on, but make sure not to blow off high school completely either, because you don't want to regret not graduating. Which brings me to my second piece of advice, which is to my class. Make sure you don't regret your decisions. Always do what you believe is right and although things may not always turn out the way you want them to, make sure you're true to yourself and that you always try your best. As Coach Brooks always said, don't worry if you lose to someone who is better than you, but it's the worst feeling in the world to know that if you had tried a little harder or put in a little more effort, you could have won. So, remember, don't regret anything you don't have to. Always try your best.

My last piece of advice is to everyone. Make sure that you enjoy your life. That doesn't always mean to do what you love, but it does mean to always try and love what you do. Take me for example, I almost backed out of making this speech tonight, but I knew I would regret it for the rest of my life. I may not be the biggest fan of public speaking, but I really am enjoying giving this speech right now. Life may not be the greatest all the time, but if you treasure every moment and try to make every moment enjoyable, then you'll realize that life really isn't that bad after all.

I have one more piece of advice I'd like to share, but it is not my own. Two years ago, my brother Jason graduated from River City and I want to pass on some of his advice to all the underclassmen and graduates here tonight. He once said not to let your experiences in high school limit your life, you'll find there is a lot more out there that you didn't even know existed. A lot of people coming out of high school think they know what their lives are going to be shaped like, but in all actuality, they don't. I think what he meant by this is that you may think you have your life planned out to the last detail, but things will always change, so be ready for them and don't think that you can't change your life plan after high school.

I'd just like to thank everyone for coming and supporting our class. It really means a lot to me and everyone else up here to see such a large crowd gathered to celebrate our success. And finally, I'd like to thank River City's graduating class of 1999. I know in the coming years we will all face our share of challenges, but our futures are bright and I know we will succeed.

Thank you.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered two feet one inch, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. The tide now is beginning to show to such an extent that even at the intake of the Sacramento water works there is a daily average raise of from one foot to two and one-half feet and even three feet. Debris from the wharf building operations of the Southern Pacific Company at Front and M streets is passing the water intake on its way upstream and it may not be long before the sewerage pumped into the river by the sump at Front and U streets in Sacramento may also come upstream. For that matter, it is possible that the sewerage is now reaching a point near the Sacramento intake for the water being delivered to Sacramento citizens tastes very much as if it were tainted with sewerage. At the Washington intake there is no debris except that coming from the boathouses down the stream as far as the M street bridge, and these are being investigated by the Yolo County board of health under the direction of Dr. Lawhead of Woodland. The dredger that has been busy at the Sacramento intake has about cleared the channel for the water of the American River to reach the pumping plant. This means that it is only American River water that the residents of Sacramento will be supplied with. City Engineer Givan makes claim that the water of the American River is better than the water of the Sacramento River because it is not contaminated with refuse from sloughs, swimming holes and other contaminating influences. Whether Mr. Givan is right or wrong, this writer would not say, but it would appear that the water of the Sacramento River should be purer than that of the American River.

H. J. Knight, secretary of the Alaska Packers Association of San Francisco, was a visitor in West Sacramento yesterday looking over the holdings of the corporation and making preparations for the harvest season which is at hand. The Alaska packers have several hundred acres of land in West Sacramento, which is highly cultivated and shows a splendid growth of fruit, alfalfa, grain and other farm products.

William Uarje was a visitor at the Janik home in West Sacramento last Wednesday evening. He had driven a Ford automobile from Reno that day, after he had been robbed in the desert west of Salt Lake by two men he had picked up on the road. He claims that in compassion for the men he had taken them in his automobile and after driving some time they decided they would rather go west alone than accompany him any further. They quietly told him to give up his money and his belongings, which he did without a struggle, and he was relieved of $75 with which he intended to visit the eastern states.

The West Side Auto Camp near the subway at Fifth street has just finished the installation of a water system for the convenience of its patrons. An electric light supply wire has also been extended to the camp and preparations are now being made for the construction of forty one-room tent houses. The lumber is already on the ground and the building of these houses will start before next Monday. The well supplying water for the camp was dug to a depth of 170 feet and a wonderfully clear supply was found. A pressure system with an electric motor automatically operated will be the means of pumping water for the camp.

Larkin J. Mosher, son of Mrs. J. Pereira, and under 18 years of age, joined the United States navy in San Francisco last Tuesday with the consent of his parents. The boy wanted to see the wide, wide world and his folks believed that in the United States navy the best chance in the world presented itself.

On the Haley place west of town last Tuesday night a fire was started of unknown origin which consumed a good deal of pasture on the premises and caught to a large pile of four-foot wood that was cut down some time ago by the owners, Albericci and Fred Bertagna. On Tuesday night the Washington Volunteer Fire Department, under command of Fire Chief Barry, went out to quell the flames and did so successfully, after stretching 1100 feet of hose from the nearest fire hydrant. The fire was not extinguished, however, until about six cords of wood were consumed. On Wednesday evening again another fire was started in another pile of wood a short distance from the one that had been consumed the previous evening. The fire boys again went to the scene of the fire but it could not be extinguished and there being no dry grass in the neighborhood the fire apparatus was not turned out. The second fire on Wednesday evening destroyed about forty cords of wood in all.

Fraser & Doyle service station has been so busy since the hoof and mouth quarantine was relieved that two young men have been put to work to help out Wallace Fraser. One of these has charge of the root beer stand, while the other serves in the service station.

Jack Reuther has added considerably to the conveniences in his barber shop by taking out a partition and enlarging the premises.

Last Thursday Sam Steuben, Tom Williams and Jack Reuther left for Icepond on a fishing trip of a couple of days. In some shady nook in that neighborhood they have discovered that trout are plentiful and on their return they expect to help out several of their friends who have been looking for a mess since the season opened. They expect to get back on Friday evening or Saturday morning. In the meantime Don Graff is taking Reuter's place in the barber shop and doing wonderfully well.

A valuable dog owned by the A. A. Dassonville family was poisoned last Tuesday in the neighborhood of the Dassonville home. The dog was a mixed breed, between a Shepherd and a Collie, and was highly prized by its owner.

Last Saturday morning Angel Campos was fined five dollars by Judge Barry on complaint of Speed Cop Sharpnack. Campos was found cutting grass for his cow on the highway in West Sacramento and while so engaged parked his automobile in the way of traffic, making it dangerous for drivers on the road. He paid the fine and promised to sin no more.

A telephone message from the home of J. N. Bennetts last night confirmed the report that he had been seriously ill during the past few days. The sickness was only of a trivial character, caused by a superfluity of obesity brought on by an easy time and little work. However, his physician declared that his heart needed attention and prescribed for him accordingly. Bennetts is ex-postmaster of Washington, but at the present time is engaged at the post office in Sacramento.

Mrs. I. K. Manchester is at her home in Washington after spending two weeks at Tres Pinos with her daughter, Mrs. Hilmer Josephs. Mrs. Manchester brought along with her the two little daughters of Mrs. Josephs, Joyce and Helen, both of whom were born in Washington. They will remain with their grandmother during their vacation period.

Mrs. Helen Ervin returned to her home in Santa Rosa last Saturday after spending several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham, in Washington.

Miss Margaret Dupzyk is able to be around again after a serious case of blood poisoning with which she became afflicted through the scratch of a cat on one of the fingers of her right hand about a month ago. The child suffered severely from the poison but has entirely recovered.

The Hauser store at Third and Anne streets is undergoing repairs evidently with the idea of being occupied within the next few days. The place was lately used as a store by Chinese, but has been vacant for some months. The Independent was unable to secure any information concerning the new renters or the purpose for which the store is to be used, but a report was current that a grocery store is about to be opened there.

Joe Beltrami and Angelo Bonomi left last Tuesday morning in an auto for Eureka, Humbodlt County, where they expect to spend the greater part of this week, returning next Sunday or Monday. They expect to do some fishing on the way.

After spending a short while in Placerville in attendance at the Eastern Star deputies meeting, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. White, Jr., returned to Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Eugene and Mrs. J. Shaw, who have been spending several days at Eldrige, Sonoma County, visiting with friends, returned home.

Mrs. B. Robbins, who has been confined to one of the Sacramento hospitals for some time by illness, has recovered sufficiently to be removed to her home.

After a few days' visit in Washington, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Ford returned to Roseville. They were guests at the O. P. Cook home.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Ortiz entertained a number of friends at their home last Sunday in honor of their daughter, Mary, who graduated from the St. Joseph's Academy last Friday. The afternoon was devoted to games and music, after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Ernest Curry returned after spending several days visiting with friends and relatives at Venice.

The Sunbeam Class of the Washington Community Church elected the following officers Sunday: Launa Williams, president; Eylvia Reynolds, vice president; Alice Allerton, secretary; Lois Patterson, treasurer; Mildred Bonetti, warden.

Among the Washington residents, who Saturday night attended the celebration and burning of the mortgage of the Odd Fellows' Temple at Folsom are: Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. R. Peek, Charles Peek, Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Cook and Miss Pearl Moser.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cameron entertained at their Washington home Sunday the following guests: Mrs. Annie Matlock, Miss Florence Matlock, Blatchford Matlock, Dan Coleman and James McGuire, all of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jasper of Wheatland. The party of San Francisco residents left Monday for Lake Tahoe, where they will spend a few days.

J. N. Peterson, accompanied by his daughter and Mrs. B. Moss, spent the week-end on a combined business and pleasure trip at Woodland.

George Beale is entertaining at his Washington home his brother, Robert A. Beale of Delaware, who arrived here for an extended visit.

Miss Jeanette Buckingham, who has been spending the past few days in Washington as the guest of the I. K. Manchester family, today left for her home in Paradise Valley. She arrived here from Berkeley, where she attended school.

CHINESE NINE BEATS WASHINGTON, 12 TO 4

The Chinese nine defeated the Washington stars of Broderick Sunday at William Land Park by a score of 12 to 4. Poor fielding by the Yolo boys and timely hitting by the Chinese was responsible for the high score.

Batteries—Washington Stars, Johnson, Bergone and Cline. Chinese, Yuke and Chow.

WASHINGTON BOOSTERS' CLUB ACTIVE IN DEVISING WAYS TO HELP IMPROVEMENT CONDITIONS

At the meeting of the Washington Boosters' Club last Tuesday evening in the town hall word was received from a committee concerning the widening of the sidewalk on Third street running between the S. P. bridge and the town hall.

Th matter had been taken up with the division superintendent of the S. P. Company, Thos. Ahern, who referred the question to the division engineer. He was given full power to do what was best in the matter of improving this sidewalk and removing a guy wire that obstructs a foot path.

Complaint was made also about a guy wire that hinders the pathway and sidewalk at Third and Harriett streets. Both these wires are the property of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company and a request was made to that corporation for remedial measures.

The club was informed that some praties not members of the organization, had been using the club's name in telephoning to Sheriff Monroe about conditions in Washington. It seems the parties who had been using the name of the club wanted to have things running their way and ordered the sheriff's office to take action accordingly.

Future consideration of this question will be taken up at another meeting of the club.

Supervisor Beardslee sent word to the club that he would attend a meeting of the organization in the near future and promised to do it at the earliest possible date.

There are many questions the Boosters' Club wants to take up with the supervisor, such as providing a dumping place for refuse from the homes, and the camping of parties along the roadways and streets of Washington without permission.

Another question the club desires to take up with Supervisor Beardslee is the cutting down of brush on the river slope of the front levee between the two bridges. It is in this shaded quarter that canned heat bums and other derelicts mix with dope fiends and in time become victims also. If the brush is cleared these victims of prohibition will not camp or lie around to the scandalizing of the neighborhood.

The secretary of the club was asked to write to Supervisor Beardslee, requesting that he be present at the next meeting on Tuesday evening.

No report having been received from the Yolo County Board of Health concerning the sanitary condition of the boathouses along the river front, the secretary was asked to write to Dr. Lawhead asking that some report be returned as soon as possible so that the river might not be contaminated at this time. This was particularly desired on account of the fact that the tide now is carrying debris northward in its fill and may contaminate the intake of the Washington water works.

It was decided that a full meeting of the club should be held next Tuesday evening so that in case Supervisor Beardslee should be present a good representation might be made at the meeting.

IRRIGATION CANALS OF WEST SACRAMENTO WELL FILLED

Certainly no fault can be found by land holders or renters of West Sacramento district this year for every irrigating ditch and drainage canal in the district is filled to the brim.

A great many farmers are taking advantage of the generous supply to irrigate their alfalfa and tomato land and at the present time it seems astonishing how much water the parched ground can take up.

Land that formerly or in previous years could not stand irrigation of any kind is greatly improved this year by a thorough flooding.

Many pumps are at work at the present time and yet the supply does not seem to diminish in the least, nor do the canals show any signs of receding through the continuous pumping.

FEDERAL COURT ADJOURNED UNTIL SEPTEMBER 27

On adjourning court last Saturday, June 21, in Sacramento, Federal Judge F. H. Kerrigan named September 27 as the earliest date on which the court could be opened again.

Many cases now pending will be held over till that date and no doubt there will be few more cases accumulating before the next session of the court.

Golden State unveils mural art project —

Golden State Middle School held a ceremony June 15 to unveil the new mural the school's students created with artist Juanishi Orosco. Above, students in front of the mural display a plaque reading "We are the Rainbow," at the dedication. The mural was funded by a California Arts Council grant and by the school district.

ART from page one

The paintings are abstractions painted with oil and acrylic paint. The organic organization of the forms and colors in the paintings suggests the inspiration of nature especially as seen in a lush flowerbed so that, at times, they seem to be almost representational but the forms are abstracted from the shape of the growing plants. The space denoted in "Rhythm" goes from a deep surface of light symbolizing the subconscious giving up some thoughts or ideas. "The Forest" and "Windswept" have definite hints of the dynamic growth in a forest as the movement of the branches in a dense forest thicket sway with the breeze.

Artist Sylvia Jorjorian was born in Istanbul, Turkey, and came to the U.S. as a child. She received formal training at the New York School of Applied Design and at Sacramento State University. Her paintings have been included in many judged art exhibits, including the Kingsley Art Exhibits at the Crocker Museum, the annual Auburn Festival, Santa Cruz Annuals and the state fair, where she won an honorable mention. She also has had numerous one-woman exhibits.

To view the paintings (before they leave at the end of July), go through the children's library into the meeting room. The library is located at 1212 Merkley Ave., West Sacramento.

June 19, 10 a.m.

Officers responded to the call of a juvenile out of control at a Spruce Way home. They found him violent and dangerous to himself and others, and took him to the hospital for a 72-hour hold and treatment. The youth was undergoing ongoing treatment for the condition.

June 19, 12:49 p.m.

An officer responded to an Elizabeth St. car accident, where a driver had struck a child apparently hiding under plastic in the driveway. The child suffered only minor injuries.

June 19, 10:49 p.m.

On Poplar Ave., a woman was found standing in the middle of the road. The 79-year old appeared confused and said she had been robbed by three suspects. However, the property she said was stolen was located nearby. She appeared unable to take care of herself and was transported to a hospital.

June 19, 11:55 p.m.

UCD police told West Sacramento police a UCD Medical Center employee who lived on Welland Way had been caught stealing medical supplies. She was on searchable probation, and the two agencies searched the residence finding 5 grams of methamphetamines and some of the possibly-stolen medical supplies. She and a male resident were arrested. Also found were marijuana and a glass pipe still smoking; the male waived his rights and admitted having been smoking "crank."

June 21, 1:10 a.m.

On Pine St., two subjects were reported in a parking lot with flashlights. An officer responded and saw a burglary in progress. The suspect vehicle fled and was followed to Green Meadow St., where it crashed into a tree. The driver fled and the passenger was arrested. Inside the vehicle was a CD player stolen from the victimized vehicle, and other electronic equipment. Police set up a perimeter nearby and caught the second juvenile suspect. Both implicated themselves in an interview.

June 20, 3 a.m.

On 6th St., a 32-year old Sacramento man got into an argument with a cousin and said, "I'm going to shoot you," then shot at the victim with a .22 calibre gun, missing. The man was reportedly intoxicated and was surprised to learn later he had been booked for attempted murder.

June 21, 7:18 a.m.

An officer located an abandoned vehicle on Welland Way. It had apparently been burned elsewhere and left on the street, blocking traffic.

June 21, 4 p.m.

An officer responded to a call on Alabama and smelled marijuana plants nearby. He saw a plant over the top of a nearby fence, and contacted the woman residing there. She said she was aware of the plant but didn't have a medical prescription to grow it. She later said it belonged to her son. She was arrested.

Our Unsung Heroes And Heroines

Cardiologists: The Heart Of The Matter

New technology that scans calcium deposits on the heart may help many people live longer, healthier lives.

(NAPS)—Cardiologists are helping us to live longer and better lives. These medical specialists are making immense progress in the fight against heart disease, which kills more than 700,000 Americans each year.

However, according to experts at Siemens Medical Systems, cardiology is facing the same problems that other medical disciplines have addressed in the past few years: rising pressure to contain costs, falling subsidies at teaching hospitals, increased competition, rising influence of managed care on medication decisions, and declining reimbursements.

In order to address this trend, cardiologists must do more and do it more efficiently. Fortunately, new technologies are leading the way. Virtually every new imaging system offers faster patient throughput, as well as high-resolution images.

Recent advances in cardiac networking have brought unprecedented efficiency to everything from diagnosis to inventory control.

One of the newest technologies with the potential to diagnose heart disease is Calcium Scoring. This non-invasive procedure scans the heart to determine the amount of calcium deposited within plaques in the coronary arteries.

Calcium deposits in the coronary arteries—the arteries that deliver blood to the heart—can be a prime indicator of heart-disease risk.

Calcium buildup causes a narrowing of the blood vessels which can lead to heart attacks and other cardiac problems.

Aiding the physician in diagnosing such potential risk early on are devices such as the Somatom Plus 4 CT scanner by Siemens Medical Systems, which can indicate the approximate amount of calcium deposits in half a second—literally within beats.

With the help of an ECG unit, the machine knows exactly when the heart is in its resting phase, triggering the scan.

This diagnostic method may soon become the gold standard in cardiac imaging because it provides a measure of cardiac calcification and costs so much less than previously used Electron Beam devices.

If you think you are at risk for heart disease, it may pay to discuss this procedure with your doctor.

To learn more about the latest cardiac technology, visit the website at www.siemens.de/med or call 732-321-3277.
